

Studio 11
453-A 11th Street
Astoria, Oregon

Studio of Jamie Boyd and John Clark
A glass and print making studio

Adventures in Glass Painting

Some traditional, some not!

Vitreous Glass Painting Class, for beginners.

Date and Time:

July 10th, 11th, and 12th, 2015 from 10:00a.m- 5:00p.m.

Fee: $350.00, for glass and paint, includes all glass and use of studio tools. Brushes are furnished. This class provides an opportunity to see if this art form is right for you, before making the investment of time and money.

This fun, exciting process of art making will draw you along on an adventurous path in images, textures, and layering of paints to the realization of your designs painted and fired into glass.

We will work with brushes the tools used to create the textures effecting your art piece. You will learn to create gradations in light varying the density of paint, and allowing textures a prominent role in telling the story of your renderings.

Various brushes used create effective textures in your artwork highlighting the beauty in your illustrations. We will learn the layering process and firing temperatures used in different types of paint.

Topics covered.

- Multiple demonstrations of glass painting processes.
- Brush types and uses.
- Paint types and uses.
- Glass types and uses.
- Mediums for glass paint.
- Kiln, digital controller programming & firing schedules

Things to bring:

Bring your artwork that you would like to produce. You will be guided along the processes, tools, materials, and types of glass to create your artwork. You will work on your own piece between the tutorials.

Sherry Boyd-Yost
Lost Art Originals

sherry_yost@lostartoriginals.com
www.lostartoriginals.com
www.artwanted.com/glasspainter1

